

Enjoyed perusing the reports posted so far, though 'soul' isn't a word or concept I feel I can personally tap to in well enough to write about. It is funny. When someone uses the word soul I feel that I know what they mean... that there is a sense of emotion and something that expresses internal environment, in a sense, but the idea of soul almost seems something to resolve, for me, not in a sense of not expressing emotion or having a full range of emotions, but as a lead or guide.
